Renfert presents a new generation of ceramic brushes

lay:art evo: The new art of layering lay:art evo from Renfert marks a paradigm shift in ceramic brushes. Needs have changed in the daily laboratory routine when it comes to ceramics, and Renfert is responding to those changes. Innovative materials, adapted layering techniques, a different mindset ... lay:art evo reflects today's dental lifestyle. Whether you choose full contour restoration or micro-layering, lay:art evo offers next level convenience and ease of work – „making work easy“.

lay:art evo impresses with incredible dental product detail and pragmatic functionality. The outstanding ceramic brush is a real trendsetter; a touch of genius that is also state of the art.

Tip-top

The bristles made from innovative bionic fiber offer a delicate tip with durable tension and elasticity. The bionic fiber is designed to meet the needs of modern laboratory tasks. The combination of responsible use of natural resources and high cost-effectiveness makes the lay:art evo more than just an alternative - the lay:art evo becomes the solution.

A solid grip on quality

The lay:art evo also offers impressive haptics. The brush fits perfectly in your hand. The surface of the handle is made from premium quality anodized aluminum. The robust choice of handle material and the refills ensure a long service life. The ergonomic design and low weight ensure easy, relaxed handling during layering. Renfert has stayed true to the popular lay:art philosophy of allowing the brush to be customized using exchangeable color cap handle tops.

Ground-breaking: lay:art evo is a best-in-class product that also sets the pace. This ceramic brush meets all requirements, from high-end ceramists to all-rounders, and impresses with ecological and economical sustainability. In other words, the new art of layering is unmistakably Renfert: „making work easy“.
